

Ren Shimizu

EAP III (Tuesday 2nd Period)

October 10, 2023

A Summary of “The Asia-Pacific’s Education Crisis”

According to Ugwuegbula (2019), In the Asia-Pacific region, especially in the South Asia, a large number of children are out of school. Also, a large proportion of the lower-middle-income population is illiterate. This situation shows that the opportunity to education and the effect of it are supposed to rise. In The 5th Asia-Pacific Meeting on Education 2030, in which many specialists from several fields discussed progress and suggestions for SDG 4, a recommendation consist of three main points was made. First, policy and financial mechanisms needs to have a change of education system to includes expanded skills and learning. Second, reform of whole parts in education such as procedures and contents is needed to enable all children to learn effectively through alternative ways need to be changed to provide all the youth opportunity of education. Last, improvement of surveillance and connection between institutions is needed to collect data that indicates how well these reforms do work. (156words)

References

Ugwuegbula, L. (2019, November 21). The Asia-Pacific’s education crisis. The Diplomat.

<https://thediplomat.com/2019/11/the-asia-pacifics-education-crisis/>